L'avocat Patelin.

Acte III. Scene ii.

Bartholin (juge du village) ... ... R. TUCKER
Guillaume (drapier) ... ... R. PERRY
Patelin (avocat) ... ... E. CAMBLE
Agnelet (berger de Guillaume) ... ... H. GRANT

Patelin, an unscrupulous barrister, has, by means of a trick, robbed Guillaume of a quantity of cloth.

Agnelet too, for some time past, has been killing his master's sheep and selling them. He is, however, finally caught in the act, and as Guillaume threatens to prosecute, Agnelet prevails upon Patelin to defend him. To all questions Patelin advises his client to answer "Baa." When the case comes on Patelin discovers to his horror that both have been robbing the same man.

Guillaume recognises Patelin, and in his excitement the former hopelessly mixes up in his evidence sheep and cloth.
